

Cox Family Reunion Next Sunday at Park	cendants of Joseph Cox now live in states from the Atlantic to Pacific, it is fitting that each year they should return to Livingston County for their reunion.
Simpson Park will again be the meeting place on Sunday, July 28th, for the descendants of Joseph Cox, and indications are that this second annual reunion will surpass the sixty-five in attendance at the organizational meeting last year. Stanley M. Cox of Kansas City is president of the Cox Family Association. This year relatives from the Texas branch of the Joseph Cox family plan to attend.	All relatives and friends of the Cox family are encouraged to attend the picnic to renew acquaintances.
The Cox family arrived in Ray County, Missouri about 1818 and settled near Richmond. At that time Livingston County was a part of a greater Ray County. Joseph Cox was the first settler in what is known as Chillicothe township, having moved his family to this part of Ray County in 1833. His original farm located north of Chillicothe is now owned by Manford Cox. Other members of the family settled nearby and on land in Medicine Creek township. Jones Cemetery east of Chillicothe is on land homesteaded by the Solomon Cox family.	Women Golfers To Have Breakfast
When Livingston County was established by the Missouri Legislature on January 6, 1837, Joseph Cox was appointed one of the first three county judges; Solomon Cox was one of the first road commissioners, and John Cox was one of the first jury members in the county. From then on, the Cox family has been closely involved with the progress of Livingston County.
