Indians used to camp on the Pleasant Cox ranch at Rumley, Martha Jane would feed them. Pleasant allowed them corn & melons from the garden.

Dad mentioned a book Uncle George had on a true story of a white boy who was captured as a child by the Indians & raised as an Indian. When the boy was grown, the Indians set him free & told him where his home was but the boy, having grown up as an Indian would not go back to the white man's world.

Pleasant Cox was a cobbler.
